

Emergent Game Technologies and Gorilla Banana Entertainment Corp Announce Licensing Agreement for Upcoming MMORPG Red Blood

Calabasas, CA and Seoul, Korea – May 19, 2010 – Emergent Game Technologies, a leading provider of 3D game development solutions, announced today a licensing deal with Korean developer Gorilla Banana Entertainment Corp for use of Emergent's proven Gamebryo engine in their upcoming MMORPG Red Blood.

Red Blood is an epic action game that takes place in a future where companies have perfected a new and improved, genetically-altered human race. Players will choose to join one of four countries – Victoria, Kulitie à Khuril-Tai, Normu à Nomos, and Peiladulia à Phratria – each possessing unique character traits and attributes to utilize. No matter which country the player chooses the goal of dominating the globe and putting your country on top remains the same.

Emergent's development engines, Gamebryo and Gamebryo LightSpeed, empower developers to create their single-player, online and multi-player games in any genre and continues Emergent's dedication to providing a one-stop cross-platform toolset for PlayStation[®]3 system, Xbox[®]360, Wii[™] and PC.
