Blast Off with Frima Studio's A Space Shooter for Two Bucks!, Available Now on PlayStation®Network!

Throughout the infinite reaches of the universe, one game from the classic space shooting genre has shot its way through countless alien invaders and the sprawling cosmos to reign supreme! Frima Studio, a leading and award-winning multi-platform game developer based in Quebec, announced today that its latest release, A Space Shooter for Two Bucks!, is now available for download on the PlayStation®Network! As a PlayStation®Mini title, A Space Shooter for Two Bucks! is playable on both the PlayStation®3 computer entertainment system and PSP® (PlayStation®Portable) system. Not only is it available for all PlayStation Network users for a super low price (take a guess at just how low...), but it is making history as the first game to be available on PlayStation Plus from its launch date, available for all Plus users absolutely free starting today!

Since time immemorial, through eons of time and dozens of game consoles, one thing has remained true: humans love hopping into a spaceship to shoot up hordes of alien invaders! In A Space Shooter for Two Bucks! (a game with perhaps the most straight-forward title in history) you get to do just that. Take control of Commander P. Jefferson and go on an intergalactic shooting spree, hopping from galaxy to galaxy in your attempts to wipe out hordes of swarming alien baddies. With over-the-top, tongue-in-cheek humor from the game's wide cast of colorful characters (all of which are fully voiced-over) and loads of bodacious power-ups to ensure your ship has a fighting chance against the sea of enemy ships and bullets, A Space Shooter for Two Bucks! gives gamers everything they could ask for in a space shooter!

Following in the footsteps of Frima's critically-acclaimed Young Thor, Widgets Odyssey and Zombie Tycoon titles released earlier this year, A Space Shooter for Two Bucks! features the level of quality fans and media have come to expect from Frima Studio and all with a ridiculously low two dollar price point, just in time for the Holiday gaming season.

A Space Shooter for Two Bucks! is rated T for Teen for mild fantasy violence, mild language, suggestive themes and use of tobacco and is (shockingly enough) available for $1.99.
